

History

The history of the White House Garage began in 1909 by an Act of Congress during the Taft Administration authorizing a White Steamer and five civilian coachmen housed in converted stables in the White House Garage.

The first White House Garage was built in 1911 as part of the Quartermaster Stables of the War Department located at 248 19th Street North West, Washington, D.C. In 1929, during the Hoover Administration, the agency began its transition from civilian coachmen to military chauffeurs.

In 1947, during the Eisenhower Administration, the agency completed its transition from civilian coachmen to military chauffeurs.

In 1964, the Agency was realigned from the Chief of Transportation and was established under the jurisdiction of the Commanding General, United States Army Military District of Washington. The unit was placed under the operational control of the White House Military Office in direct Support of the President of the United States.
